Farm Surplus Program Costs Millions Daily

Uncle Sam Totes Up His Loss: Now about 4 3/4 Million Daily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is losing money at the rate of about $44 million a day on stocks of surplus farm products.

A Commodity Credit Corp. report today showed that the government lost a total of $837,764,000 in carrying out programs for handling and disposing of surplus supplies acquired under farm price support programs during the seven-month period Feb. 28.

Most of the losses were incurred in the sale of farm products for export at prices less than cost or in donations to needy persons in this country and abroad.

Farm officials hope that the surpluses can be disposed of within two or three years and that losses would be stopped.

The eight-month losses by commodities included: cotton $370,555,000; wheat $82,484,000; corn $71,063,000; rice $60,367,000; dried milk $61,404,000; cheese $42,167,00; butter $10,704,000; grain sorghum $21,830,000; and fluid milk $48,727,000.

If American farmers want to brag about progress they have made in helping feed the world, they might cite a prediction made 57 years ago by a noted British scientist and authority on world food problems.

ADDRESSING a London meeting of the British Assn. for the Advancement of Science, Sir William Crookes warned of food shortages ahead. He told of the job American farmers had been doing in helping supply other countries with wheat. But he made this dire forecast:

"Practically there remains no uncultivated prairie land in the United States suitable for wheat growing. The virgin land has been rapidly absorbed, until at present there is no land left for wheat without reducing the area for maize (corn), hay and other necessary crops."

"It is almost certain that within a generation," he went on, "the ever-increasing population of the United States will consume all the wheat grown within its borders, and will be driven to import, and, like ourselves, will scramble for a lion's share of the wheat crop of the world."

Sir William's forecast, which bobbed up in an Agriculture Department employee's research efforts went far astray.

Since that time, this country has greatly expanded its wheat acreage and, even with nearly a half of that land being held out of production, is exporting this marketing year the third largest quantity of wheat in history.

In addition, it has a reserve supply more than ample to meet the country's needs for a year without growing any of the grain.

Sonic Booms Said To Be Harmless

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Air Force expert says sonic booms are harmless but so loud that many people "find cracks they hadn't noticed before and asked the Air Force to pay for them."

Col. Roy R. Walker said that a boom, the noise a jet plane makes breaking through the sound barrier, can be heard over 10 times the noise of the loudest thunderclap on record, he said, but generates only 5 pounds of pressure per square foot. It takes 70 pounds of pressure per square foot to damage even the flimsiest structures, White said.

Wiggles Droops As Waggles Flees

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Wiggles isn't wagging any more because Waggles, a rare bird indeed, has wiggled away.

The point of the story is that an exotic bird named Waggles, a $600 Queen of Bavaria Conure or golden parrot, flew the coop Sunday night. Wiggles, his mate, was left by herself on the perch.

Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Hall said Waggles was last seen winging his way east. Mrs. Hall said that she would appreciate it if anyone finding Waggles would promptly wriggle over to the Hall household so Wiggles, now quite droopy, can waggle back into shape.

Iranian Bandit King Dies in Police Fight

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Pakistani border police said today that Dadshah, the leader of an Iranian bandit gang that killed three Americans, had been slain.

Iranian police previously had announced the slaying of three of the bandits, including one identified as the actual killer. The conflicting reports could not be reconciled immediately.

Pakistani police said Dadshah, his 18-year-old son, Hamil, and his wife were killed in a gun battle with Iranian police five days ago.

There were no reports from Iran confirming the death of the leader, but Iranian police reports said the body of the pregnant third wife of the outlaw chief had been killed by the bandits themselves because she was unable to keep up with their flight, the Iranian police said.

A dispatch from Tehran said the Iranian government had requested the extradition of 15 members of the gang captured in Pakistan, including Dadshah's two brothers, Mohammed and Ahmed, two other men and 11 women and children.

A government spokesman in Tehran said the prisoners were expected to be handed over the border today or Tuesday, would face a summary court-martial and if found guilty would be executed immediately.

Kevin Carroll, husband of Mrs. Carroll, Brewster Wilson of Portland, Ore., a Near East Foundation expert and two Iranians were killed in a bandit attack in desolate southeastern Iran two weeks ago. Mrs. Carroll was carried away by the gang, but was shot a short distance away, apparently because the bandits feared she would hinder their escape.

Pakistani police said they rounded up the bandits in the mountainous desert area near the border as they were attempting to escape to the Pakistan port of Gwadar on the Gulf of Oman.

He drew a loud cheer from 2,300 delegates representing 1½ million UAW members by declaring, "All the corruption is not on labor's side."

Otherwise, Reuther told the United Auto Workers convention Sunday "the reactionaries will clean it for us. But they won't use a broom; they'll use an ax, and they'll try to destroy the labor movement in the process."

Reuther called on labor to "drive out every crook and racketeer we can find."

He also claimed some management evils too.

He charged that "reactionary corrupt managements would rather pay a bribe to a crooked labor leader than to pay a living wage to the workers represented by that crooked labor leader."

Reuther quoted Robert Kennedy of the Senate's rackets investigators' staff as saying, "It is striking to us how little help business has been giving to the committee. Often management would rather have the status quo and make their payoffs."

REUTHER SAID he had this to say to Sen. McClellan's (D-Ark.) committee: "We will give you full support and cooperation. Go after the crooks in the labor movement, but go after the crooks in management's side of the problem."

In an attack on Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), Reuther said McCarthy knew that he was lying when he said, "In general that the UAW was so bad that it would make the Teamsters Union smell like high grade perfume."

"I wasn't surprised," Reuther said "when Joe McCarthy ran interference for Dave Beck (Teamsters president). They have got a great deal in common, because both Joe McCarthy and Dave Beck refused to testify about their personal financial matters before a Senate committee."

REUTHER SAID he had this to say to Sen. McClellan's (D-Ark.) committee: "We will give you full support and cooperation. Go after the crooks in the labor movement, but go after the crooks in management's side of the problem."

Dulles Seeking New Fund To Make Foreign Loans

Proposal Seen Costing Up to $750 Million

Economic Development Of Needy Countries Said Aim of Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles today proposed that the United States set up a special foreign aid fund from which needy countries could draw long term easy pay loans to develop their economies.

He suggested such loans might run to $750 million a year. In testimony to a special Senate committee studying foreign aid, Dulles called also for:

1. Removal of foreign military aid from the State Department appropriations request to the Defense Department bill, a bookkeeping move in line with recommendations of many members of Congress who argue that the public has been confused by lumping all foreign aid into a single appropriations bill.

Since by far the largest funds to arming friendly allies, these members of Congress have wanted that point emphasized.

2. Continue the International Cooperation Administration as a semi-autonomous agency under the State Department to administer non-military aid.

3. CONTINUE the special presidential contingency fund, now $100 million a year, to meet foreign aid emergencies.

4. Emphasize loans in foreign aid, but continue making outright grants where loans can not do the job.

5. Maintain military aid at about the present level, but expect to re-arm America's allies with "more modern types of weapons" while cutting back the size of local forces.

Dulles made it clear the administration did not anticipate the lending of $750 million for economic

Robert Mace New Hospital Trustee

The board of Fayette County Commissioners and Common Pleas Judge John Case and Probate Judge Robert Brubaker accepted the resignation of Eugene Smith as a trustee of Fayette County Memorial Hospital and appointed Robert Mace, Hess Rd., Union Twp., to fill his place on the board.

The commissioners and judges took action at a joint session Monday afternoon.

Mace's appointment is effective immediately. Smith's unexpired term has nearly four years to run.

Mace, a graduate of Ohio State University College of Agriculture, is a farmer and is reported as a man active in community affairs.

Smith resigned because of his health and the pressure of other business.

Both Smith and Mace are Democrats. The board is bi-partisan and Smith's successor had to be of the same political faith.

Youth's Body Found in Rain-Swollen Creek

At 3:45 p. m. Saturday, three gunshots cracked the cloudy air over the flooded Deer Creek valley.

It was the prearranged signal: the body of James Miller had been found.

At 4 p. m., the body was lifted from Game Protector Charles Cooper's motor boat onto the shore by the Yankeetown Bridge.

The two-day hunt for the 17-year-old youth, drowned Thursday when his boat capsized—a mile north of the bridge, was finished.

More than 100 relatives, friends and volunteers took part in the 45-hour search. The two who finally found him were John Musselman, 55, of Darby, and his son, John L. Musselman, 28, of Mt. Sterling. They had joined the searching party as volunteers just two hours before.

MILLER'S BODY was discovered just 250 yards from where the boat sank in the swollen creek. It was in a pile of debris invisible until the flood-swollen creek had receded Saturday morning.

None of the youth's family was at the creek when the body was discovered. Exhausted from the search and from shock, they were all resting at their Harrison Rd. farm near White Oak. Miller's companion, David Goldsberry, 16, of Mt. Sterling, in the boat with Miller when it capsized about 7 p. m. Thursday, was at home also.

The discovery came just two hours after an organized posse, under the direction of Sheriff Orland Hays, had gone to work on a protracted search of the stream.

Unorganized efforts had continued every daylight hour from the time of the tragedy until the posse was formed. • • •

THE YOUTH is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller; three brothers, John Jr., 20, Bill, 16, and Charlie Edgar, 8; and two sisters, Linda Lee, 14, and Janice June, 9.

Services were held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Church of the Nazarene at Mt. Sterling, under the direction of the Rev. Lester Meyer. Burial was in Pleasant Cemetery, Mt. Sterling.

CAIRO (AP)—U. N. salvage crews today completed clearance of the Suez Canal by lifting and hauling away the sunken Egyptian frigate Abukir, last major block in the 103-mile waterway.

Removal of the freighter opens the canal to ships up to 20,000 tons — provided the Egyptian government gives a go-ahead. Before removal only ships of under 10,000 tons could go through.

Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of the clearance operation is expected to send word to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who will notify the General Assembly. The 81-nation Assembly after the cease-fire which halted the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt last fall.

Meanwhile, the 10,441-ton Kern Hills pumped Iranian oil into waterfront tanks in Israel's port of Eilat while Israeli soldiers stood guard with machineguns.

Glenn E. Moseley of Portland, Ore., captain of the Kern Hills, said he expected to finish unloading its cargo—1,000 tons of crude oil and 15,500 tons of crude oil—and sail by midnight tonight.

It was the third major storm in an unseasonable series coursing across the nation, but so far had not caused the loss of human life or livestock.

Behind the storm front, temperatures dipped sharply today in a small area centering around the juncture of Wyoming, Colorado and Nebraska. The mercury dived to zero at Fort Collins, Colo., 4 above at Laramie, Wyo., and 12 above at Sidney, Neb. Readings in the 20s and 30s were reported elsewhere. But these low temperatures are not unusual for this time of year. Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming does not open to tourists until June 15. Even then, in a normal year, there is snow on the ground and cabin stoves are stoked regularly.

The snow, then accompanied by brisk winds, closed several main highways Saturday night in Wyoming. It measured up to 13 inches at Lander, Wyo., on the east face of the Rockies. Smaller amounts had been taken from a desk drawer in the store.

Determining that the burglar couldn't have gone out any other way than through the back window, since doors were bolted-lock, the entire store was searched, but the burglar apparently had fled before police arrived.

Police Chief D. Vaiden Long, Sgt. Robert Williams and Charles Foster, Patrolmen Lang Layhart, Elmer Kelley and Charles Long, and Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Mickel all took part in the hunt.

The burglar, the cash and the shells were still at large Monday morning. • • •

Three Students Here Get Superior Rating On Science Displays

Two Washington C. H. students and one at Jeffersonville received "superior" ratings on projects they exhibited in the Western Ohio Science Day at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Saturday.

Eligible to attend the state science fair at Bowling Green April 19 are Sarah Core and Sandra Rose of Washington C. H., High School and Forrest May of Jeffersonville High School. They all received the top rank at the Springfield show.

Six other Washington C. H. and Fayette County students received "excellent" ranks on their projects, which eliminates them from showing at Bowling Green, but nevertheless places them high on the competitive ladder among young Ohio scientists.

The six are Ronald Ford and Robert Belt of Madison Mills and Mary Ann Hackett, Saurda Cook, Peter Hays and Ronnie McCray of Washington C. H.

RECEIVING "good" ratings on their projects were David Morrow of Jeffersonville and Ted Clarke, Paulette Pennington, Jerry Shepard, Forrest Hines, Karol McCune and Joyce Lutz of Washington C. H.

Of the three top-rated students, Sarah showed an exhibit in physics, Sandra in chemistry and Forrest one in zoology.

Teen-age scientists from 11 counties and about 116 high schools and junior high schools participated in the show, sponsored by the Ohio Academy of Science.

School Bus Driver Dies, 12 Kids Hurt

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP)—The big semi-trailer of a truck broke loose and collided head-on with a school bus today, killing the bus driver and injuring 12 students, one of them critically.

Killed in the crash which demolished the bus was Emil Michaels, 60, Michigan City.

Donald Heiden, 6, was reported in critical condition with possible internal injuries.

Eleven other pupils were reported in good condition in Doctors and St. Anthony's hospitals here. About 23 other pupils escaped.

State police said the trailer loose just as the bus was meeting the trailer-truck on U. S. 421 five miles south of here.

Elmer W. Pagels, 35, Rolling Prairie, driver of the truck, was not hurt, nor was Lawrence L. Hanna, 17, Michigan City, whose car crashed into the rear end of the trailer. Hanna had been driving behind the truck.

The bus had picked up students in Coolsprings Township south of Michigan City to bring them to two schools, St. Mary's Roman Catholic High School and St. Paul's Lutheran Elementary School.

(Continued from Page One) mic development in the coming fiscal year, but he said that "over the future," it "might come to reach 750 million dollars a year."

Dulles did not rule out all outright grants to help underdeveloped nations develop their economies.

He said there will be continuing requirements for grant aid "to meet contingencies and imperative needs which can not be realistically met by loans."

And he said there will be continuing need for technical assistance programs "now running at about 150 million dollars a year."

Dulles may be questioned today about the progress of negotiations with Poland on a proposed $75 million economic aid program.

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, has opposed giving Poland aid.

SEN. BRIDGES (R-N.H.), chairman of the Senate's GOP Policy Committee, took a similar stand, saying aid to Poland would relieve "the burdens of the Soviet government."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.), a committee member, said he wants to learn what, if any, commitments the United States has made to fill defense gaps to be opened by Great Britain's announced reduction in military manpower.

As part of an economy drive, the British have said they will cut their armed forces back from the present level of 690,000 men to 375,000 by 1962. Humphrey said he wants to know the effect of this move on North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) defenses and whether additional foreign military assistance will be involved.

British-Yemen Clash Reported

CAIRO (AP) — The Middle East News Agency reported today that British forces fired on an Arab League mission visiting Yemen's southern frontiers.

In a dispatch from Beida, Yemen, the Arab agency said British troops caught sight of military members of the mission Sunday and opened fire. In the resulting battle with Yemeni troops, the agency said, two British soldiers were killed and two Yemenites wounded.

The Arab League mission headed by Asst. Secretary General Ahmed Shkairy was sent to investigate charges of British aggression on Yemen.

Water Causes Fire At Gregg St. House

You'd just better be careful — almost anything can start a fire.

A case in point: the Washington C. H. Fire Department put out a fire at 728 Gregg St. about 1 p. m. Monday, which was started by high water.

Seems the water seeped around the furnace at the home of Kenneth Penwell, fouling up the furnace mechanism. With the mechanism awry, the furnace wouldn't turn off automatically, as it should.

It kept burning, finally overheated and set fire to the wood nearby.

Actual damage was slight.

Political Effect Of Gov. O'Neill Reversal Eyed

Reaction Is Mixed
To Action Taken
On Salary-Cut Issue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (P)—Republican Gov. C. William O'Neill's surprise test of a political theory created a statewide buzz that could echo in next year's elections.

The former attorney general openly reversed himself on big pay raises for his top appointees in a move shunned by veteran politicians, who usually prefer to weather criticism than back down.

Mixed reaction greeted O'Neill's request for the Legislature to restore most $18,000 and $16,000 a year salaries to the $12,000 and $10,000 level from which he insisted before his mid-January inauguration that they be advanced.

The Senate passed the pay cut bill Friday, 32-2.

Republicans generally termed it a good move that would benefit the party in coming elections. They asserted most criticism of the higher salaries would be forgotten by the public despite attempts of Democrats to keep the "mistake" alive in the hope of harvesting political hay. Others disagreed.

Some speculated that the cuts might affect harmony in the governor's official family. They meant little to a few cabinet members. But high pay was a factor for others who worked hard in last year's election campaign and reluctantly gave up personal plans in answer to pleas for additional help.

O'Neill became insistent after some experts he hoped to "draft" elsewhere said they wouldn't trade jobs regardless of the new salaries offered.

The governor said he had considered the political consequences of his salary revocation request and asserted:

"If you do what you believe to be right, that is always the best politics. I feel good about the decision because I feel it is right."

His prepared message accompanying the salary repeal bill to the Legislature had this to say about the act he signed into law the day after taking office:

"I requested the passage of this legislation in the belief that it could be helpful in securing persons of special skills and technical training to assist in administering our state government. In some instances this proved to be true.

"However, I have found that salary is not always the controlling factor in obtaining competent personnel."

"I know that many of you had mental reservations concerning the advisability of passing legislation providing for these salary increases. Your mental reservations have proved to be sound."

"I am happy to tell you that I have been successful in enlisting the services of able people to assist in the administration of our government."

"I have discussed this proposed change in compensation with them and it will not disturb the proper functioning of our state government, nor will any constitutional difficulties be encountered."

The repeal proposal left intact the $30,000 pay of Highway Chief Charles M. Noble, former New Jersey Turnpike engineer recommended as one of the nation's top road builders, and $18,000 salaries of three Public Utilities Commission members. All formerly got $12,000 a year.

The proposal also cut back pay of the yet to be filled post of mental health director from $25,000 to $18,000 annually. That job also paid $12,000 formerly.

One veteran legislator said O'Neill's move exploded a popular belief that executives could be lured into state service from private industry and professions by sizable salaries.

He explained that public service requires special talents, including an ability to withstand criticism that almost always is abundant

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

One Fayette Countian, who admits that his venture might result in failure, yet might save him a big fuel bill each year if successful, has announced plans for drilling for gas on his premises, in Union Township.

The man, who does not wish his name mentioned, believes that there is sufficient gas under his property to more than supply his requirements, and is willing to sink few thousands of dollars in the venture in an effort to provide his own gas supply.

He is prompted to drill by the fact that some gas has been struck in nearly every deep well drilled in this community, and even in some of the shallow wells a considerable mount has been found.

One man who lives south of New Holland utilizes gas from a very shallow well for cooking purposes.

"Maybe it is wild catting, and may be money spent for nothing, but I have faith enough to try it, just once," the man who is considering drilling for gas told me recently.

40 YEARS AGO

Fayette County like all of the rest of the United States, was preparing for war with Germany and her allies at whom had severed peace-time relations with the United States.

Fayette farmers were preparing to grow the greatest acreage of corn ever planted here, and Company M was being recruited rapidly to full war strength.

National Guard officers, learning that three pro-Germans in South Salem had made disrespectful remarks about the U. S. flag, forced public apology.

The German gunboat "Caroma" was blown up by its crew at Guam, where it had been interned. Mexico sent 4,000 troops to Juarez. German raiders were operating off the U. S. East Coast and Gulf of Mexico.

Patriotic meetings and public flag raisings were held. Plans were being made to increase the National Guard to 600,000 and to send troops to Europe. James (Red) Dickey enlisted in U. S. Marines. (He was later Fayette County's most decorated soldier in World War I.)

CLAY TOBACCO PIPES

Practically every general store 50 years ago carried a generous stock of clay tobacco pipes, which at that time were very much in demand among tobacco smokers—both men and women.

In fact I used to know a well respected aged woman in Paint Township, who was almost continually puffing a clay pipe, which she replenished at frequent intervals.

Divorcee Indicted In Slaying Case

RICHMOND, Ind. (P)—A 31-year-old divorcee accused of killing photographer Roy Hirshburg, has been indicted for murder.

The Wayne County grand jury indicted Miss Ethel Wise, a bottle cap factory worker, for the rifle shooting of the 64-year-old photographer on the street in front of his studio March 25.

Miss Anne McFarland, 41, who had given up work as a painter to be Hirshburg's receptionist, witnessed the shooting. Prosecutor Bert Keller Jr. said Miss McFarland stated that Miss Wise was jealous of her and had threatened to kill both her and Hirshburg.

Political Effect Of Gov. O'Neill Reversal Eyed

Reaction Is Mixed To Action Taken On Salary-Cut Issue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Repellent Gov. C. William O'Neill's surprise test of a political theory created a statewide buzz that could echo in next year's elections.

The former attorney general openly reversed himself on big pay raises for his top appointees in a move shunned by veteran politicians, who usually prefer to weather criticism than back down.

Mixed reaction greeted O'Neill's request for the Legislature to restore most $18,000 and $16,000 a year salaries to the $12,000 and $10,000 level from which he insisted before his mid-January inauguration that they be advanced.

The Senate passed the pay cut bill Friday, 32-2.

Republicans generally termed it a good move that would benefit the party in coming elections. They asserted most criticism of the higher salaries would be forgotten by the public despite attempts of Democrats to keep the "mistake" alive in the hope of harvesting political hay. Others disagreed.

Some speculated that the cuts might affect harmony in the governor's official family. They meant little to a few cabinet members. But high pay was a factor for others who worked hard in last year's election campaign and reluctantly gave up personal plans in answer to pleas for additional help.

O'Neill became insistent after some experts he hoped to "draft" elsewhere said they wouldn't trade jobs regardless of the new salaries offered.

The governor said he had considered the political consequences of his salary revocation request and asserted:

"If you do what you believe to be right, that is always the best politics. I feel good about the decision because I feel it is right."

His prepared message accompanying the salary repeal bill to the Legislature had this to say about the act he signed into law the day after taking office:

"I requested the passage of this legislation in the belief that it could be helpful in securing persons of special skills and technical training to assist in administering our state government. In some instances this proved to be true."

"However, I have found that salary is not always the controlling factor in obtaining competent personnel."

"I know that many of you had mental reservations concerning the advisability of passing legislation providing for these salary increases. Your mental reservations have proved to be sound."

"I am happy to tell you that I have been successful in enlisting the services of able people to assist in the administration of our government."

"I have discussed this proposed change in compensation with them and it will not disturb the proper functioning of our state government, nor will any constitutional difficulties be encountered."

It is true that not many passengers boarded the train or left it at Cunningham, but when they did, even though it was only one passenger, (which was frequently the case) the train stopped when flagged or to let off the passengers bound for Cunningham.

It was named after Seymour Cunningham, who owned the land at that point, and the land is still owned by the Cunningham heirs.

It seems that there was only one building at Cunningham, and it was a combination general store (very small) and residence.

Train passengers usually waited in the store.

Some 60 or 70 years ago Sol Munro ran the store and his family lived in the back part of the building.

The building, which was on the east side of "Frog Lane" (I mean Harmony Rd.) and south of the Railroad, was destroyed by fire 15 to 20 years ago, and at that time it was occupied by Herb Paul and family.

The little store, which at one time was patronized by residents throughout the community, was abandoned many years prior to the building being burned.

Is Stalemate Better Than Years of War?

We note that one writer recently came out with the declaration that "It may be that when historians get to the point of analyzing our present period, they may call it the 'Age of Stalemate.'"

There are many world observers who hold the view that most statesmen on the world scene today seem to have developed an expediency for bringing problems to an impasse without reaching solutions.

Some observers point to what they call the "fruits of stalemate" by calling attention to Korea, divided between Communist and non-Communist control. So, they say, is the situation in Indochina and in Germany once a world powerful unit within itself. Yet most of us wonder if that isn't better than years of war.

Along this line the Middle East threatens to become another area of unresolved conflict, with neither Israel nor the Arab states finding a basis for a lasting settlement of differences.

In this age, it seems, issues all too often become mired in a morass of technicalities, side matters, personality questions, and the like.

Many men not only do not act in many great affairs, but they do not talk about them in any serious way. And sometimes, when they do agree to talk, the effort finally fails because they can't agree what to talk about first.

Inevitably, it would appear, there had to be an argument even about so eminent practical a business as clearing the clogged Suez Canal.

One of the marks of the time is the long span over which particular issues, or even single phases of an issue, occupy the front pages of the world's newspapers. No fiction serial ever did as well.

The evils of stalemate are obviously many. Not the least of them is the weariness it induces in the world's citizenry. When any issue is hacked at and hashed over endless times, boredom is the result. And when boredom sets in, the prospect for real solution diminishes and the opportunity for still greater evil rises.

The easiest and perhaps the fundamental explanation for the condition of stalemate is the great East-West struggle for power. So long as the two contending sides are in relative balance, stalemate may be inescapable. Yet diplomatic patience often pays off well.

However, something else may be at work, for stalemate today is certainly not limited to just those questions affecting the East-West contest.

Some would say that among today's principals on the world scene there is too often an insufficient will to achieve real solutions to problems. There seems to be more interest in clinging to established positions and attitudes, whatever may be the effect on world order.

Rather than yield anything at all, some statesmen will split another hair in support of their own position, and go on from there to nowhere. If a world post-a-service had been proposed in this era it probably would have been vetoed.

Humanity never will be of one mind and never should. But if it is to live together in some kind of rough happiness on this globe, it must find the will and the means to solve its mutual problems even if that compels mutual sacrifice.

20,000-Words-a-Minute Reader

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—You've heard a lot about private eyes. But Ed Haupt probably has America's swiftest public eyes. A sort of prose detective and big name hunter, he is perhaps the nation's fastest reader.

"I can scan up to 20,000 words a minute," admitted Haupt who gallops through the pages of scores of publications daily for a clipping bureau here.

After 30 years in the business, Haupt, a mild-mannered, slow-talking family man who lives in Yonkers, is the acknowledged kingpin. Most of the 400 professional newspaper readers who work for the 30 U.S. press clipping services are women.

They regard Haupt with something akin to awe. Few can read at even half the pace set by his busy bee eyes.

As he reads Haupt, who has a file drawer mind, marks any mention of the names of some 8,000 people, products and companies. The list of clients, of course, has daily changes.

The idea seems general that only vanity leads people to subscribe to a clipping service," he said. "Actually, most of the subscribers are hard-headed business men looking for information."

The clipping service gets many odd requests. One client signed because he wanted a check made to be sure his name wasn't appearing in the newspapers.

Another firm (it manufactures dog food) wants all news stories involving heroic dogs.

"For a time we had a client who wanted all photos of drum majorettes appearing in skirts," Haupt recalled. "We couldn't figure why. It turned out he was a young lad trying to build his own collection of pinup pictures. His mother stopped the service."

The clipping bureau cooperates with the FBI to see that the requests of clients from behind the Iron Curtain are checked for security clearance.

Haupt at the rate of 20,000 words a minute (the average person doesn't read more than about 250), Haupt can get through the equivalent of a dozen or more long-winded novels in a day.

He looks for key words, names or phrases, underlining them as he goes. The stories are clipped later by other workers.

The biggest occupational dangers for professional readers such as Haupt are daydreaming and getting too interested in a subject.

"You can't let that happen," he said. "But no matter how fast I skip over the pages, some of the information sticks in my mind. You get so you know a little bit about practically everything."

His terrific reading has had no bad effect on his eyes. He still wears the same lenses in his glasses he did 10 years ago.

His hobby?

"I like to read the newspaper going home from work," Haupt said, "but leisurely."

Opportunity for Communists

By George Sokolsky

Harvard's slogan, "Veritas," meaning truth, as their motto. Their point is that there is no truth in Dr. Oppenheimer. Before this committee was organized, an alumnus, Kenneth D. Robertson, '29, entered upon considerable correspondence with Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski, '27, who is chairman of the Board of Harvard overseers.

I've read this correspondence which runs to many pages and it would seem that Judge Wyzanski lost his temper and threatened to sue Robertson if the latter made Wyzanski's correspondence public. This Robertson did and Wyzanski, so far as I know, has not sued. The Veritas committee is making this exchange of correspondence available. True, it must be very embarrassing to the learned judge to have his letters read by the ho-ho-polit because he does not argue too well but pontifically.

Most Americans dislike a big shot taking advantage, particularly of a situation to which the people elevated him. Harry Truman's remarks of his bad blood with Ike show Harry in a better light, because a President who refused to be polite to an ex-President is taking advantage of a man who has no way to fight back.

Besides, by all the rules of politics, Eisenhower owes Truman a debt of gratitude, to repay which a dish of scrambled eggs and bacon, with toast and marmalade and good coffee, is not asking too much. Truman, however, does not play golf, his specialty being Mozart.

However, to get back to the Veritas committee, the likelihood is that the Oppenheimer lectures will take place in English or Sanskrit, and that numerous scholars will attend and applaud.

The mood has changed and even at Columbia University, which is fairly conservative compared to Harvard, the John Dewey Society invited John Gates, the editor of the "Daily Worker," to address them and another student body had Dr. Otto Nathan of New York University who, among other curious activities, is the curator of Albert Einstein's dead brain and I find it difficult to discover what he has done

Easter Seals Helps Girl Out of Chair

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

I would like to tell you the story of little Clara Jo.

Paralyzed from the waist down by a congenital spinal defect, the child faced a lifetime of helplessness in a wheel chair.

Inched Along

At the age of 2½, even after extensive surgery and the acquisition of braces, Clara Jo's own efforts to move resulted only in her inching along on the floor in sort of a swimming motion. Her hands were awkward and flailing.

Today, at the age of 5, Clara Jo goes wherever she desires on her crutches.

She takes the bus to school. She keeps up with her own age group in class, has developed a lively interest in reading, drawing and music, and has become a contributing member of her family circle.

Rehabilitation Center

It was an Easter Seal rehabilitation center in her home town which made the difference.

At the center, a highly trained and skilled professional team took over her case. This team consisted of various medical specialists, physical, occupational and speech therapists and medical and psychiatric case workers.

The resources upon which this team could draw included a great variety of equipment such as parallel bars, climbing bars, steps, weighted doll buggy, a vast array of specialized toys, appliances and recreational advantages.

Within three months after Clara Jo's daily program was established at the center, she walked. Then, day by day, exercises were begun to build her shoulder muscles and to strengthen her trunk, arm and hand muscles.

Daily Routine

Push-ups, the elephant walk, the wheel barrow walk, crutch walking, roll-overs and parallel bars became part of her daily routine both at home and at the center. There was occupational therapy, too.

So, Clara Jo wants to thank all of you for making this possible. Clara Jo was the 1956 Easter Seal crippled children.

The National Society for Crippled Children and Adults is asking again for your support to help them to help other children just as they—and you—helped Clara Jo. How about it?

The Nation Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — No need to feel alone if you have the feeling you don't know where you're heading because science is moving so fast in finding new ways to make war.

The British, who have had plenty of their own scientists working on weapons, have just made the astonishing admission they're only now beginning to see through the scientific fog around war in the future.

Some recent events explain what's been happening and what looms ahead.

President Eisenhower at Bermuda promised British Prime Minister Macmillan this country would supply Britain with an intermediate ballistic missile, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead 1,500 miles, when it's ready.

When will it be ready? This past week Sen. Russell (D-Ga) said perhaps within months. That could be a year. He's chairman of the Senate's Armed Services Committee, which had just received secret testimony from Air Force officials.

This country is also developing intercontinental ballistic missiles, able to go 5,000 miles, but they are further from completion than the 1,500-mile type.

Russia suddenly began warning Britain, West Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark, Norway and Greece to expect annihilation in case of war if they let the United States build atomic bases — missile bases, no doubt — in their territory.

If this is the American government's plan, the public here doesn't know of it yet. Russia may have been guessing, or have had inside information through espionage, or have been expecting the worst.

But last Thursday Britain started the world — but hardly the traders of her allies, who must have known what was coming — by announcing she would rely mainly on nuclear weapons and cut her traditional military establishment sharply.

It was in a white paper announcement this that the British said:

"It has been clear for some time that . . . scientific advances must fundamentally alter the whole basis of military planning.

"But it is only now that the future picture is becoming sufficiently clear to enable a comprehensive reshaping of policy to be undertaken with any degree of confidence."

So the British planned on having guided missiles and a reduced air force because they'll rely more on ground-to-air missiles to stop attacking planes. They have atom bombs, hope soon to have hydrogen ones.

They will keep a small mobile army for emergency situations. Their greatest hope for discouraging a Russian attack will be their nuclear weapons and the nuclear power of the United States.

There was concern expressed that this move by Britain might encourage other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to reduce their forces too.

They probably will, also putting weapons. West Germany's Chancellor Adenauer is already calling for atomic weapons.

It is not hard for Russia, ringed now by American bomber bases, to foresee the day when she will be ringed by missile bases. But meanwhile the Russians are developing their own missiles.

Soon it will be a question: Who's scaring whom? It's possible American allies will be scared by the closeness of Russian missiles and begin to lose interest in alliances which might invite Russia to start a war if they don't deter her.

Is Stalemate Better Than Years of War?

We note that one writer recently came out with the declaration that "It may be that when historians get to the point of analyzing our present period, they may call it the 'Age of Stalemate.'"

There are many world observers who hold the view that most statesmen on the world scene today seem to have developed an expediency for bringing problems to an impasse without reaching solutions.

Some observers point to what they call the "fruits of stalemate" by calling attention to Korea, divided between Communist and non-Communist control. So, they say, is the situation in Indochina and in Germany once a world powerful unit within itself. Yet most of us wonder if that isn't better than years of war.

Along this line the Middle East threatens to become another area of unresolved conflict, with neither Israel nor the Arab states finding a basis for a lasting settlement of differences.

In this age, it seems, issues all too often become mired in a morass of technicalities, side matters, personality questions, and the like.

Many men not only do not act in many great affairs, but they do not talk about them in any serious way. And sometimes, when they do agree to talk, the effort finally fails because they can't agree what to talk about first.

Inevitably, it would appear, there had to be an argument even about so eminent practical a business as clearing the clogged Suez Canal.

One of the marks of the time is the long span over which particular issues, or even single phases of an issue, occupy the front pages of the world's newspapers. No fiction serial ever did as well.

The evils of stalemate are obviously many. Not the least of them is the weariness it induces in the world's citizenry. When any issue is hacked at and hashed over endless times, boredom is the result. And when boredom sets in, the prospect for real solution diminishes and the opportunity for still greater evil rises.

The easiest and perhaps the fundamental explanation for the condition of stalemate is the great East-West struggle for power. So long as the two contending sides are in relative balance, stalemate may be inescapable. Yet diplomatic patience often pays off well.

However something else may be at work, for stalemate today is certainly not limited to just those questions affecting the East-West contest.

Some would say that among today's principals on the world scene there is too often an insufficient will to achieve real solutions to problems. There seems to be more interest in clinging to established positions and attitudes, whatever may be the effect on world order.

Rather than yield anything at all, some statesmen will split another hair in support of their own position, and go on from there to nowhere. If a world post-a-service had been proposed in this era it probably would have been vetoed.

Humanity never will be of one mind and never should. But if it is to live together in some kind of rough happiness on this globe, it must find the will and the means to solve its mutual problems even if that compels mutual sacrifice.

20,000-Words-a-Minute Reader

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—You've heard a lot about private eyes.

But Ed Haupt probably has America's swiftest public eyes. A sort of prose detective and big name hunter, he is perhaps the nation's fastest reader.

"I can scan up to 20,000 words a minute," admitted Haupt who gallops through the pages of scores of publications daily for a clipping bureau here.

After 30 years in the business, Haupt, a mild-mannered, slow-talking family man who lives in Yonkers, is the acknowledged kingpin. Most of the 400 professional newspaper readers who work for the 30 U.S. press clipping services are women.

They regard Haupt with something akin to awe. Few can read at even half the pace set by his bee eyes.

As he reads Haupt, who has a file drawer mind, marks any mention of the names of some 8,000 people, products and companies. The list of clients, of course, has daily changes.

"The idea seems general that only vanity leads people to subscribe to a clipping service," he said. "Actually, most of the subscribers are hard-headed business men looking for information."

The clipping service gets many odd requests. One client subscribed because he wanted a check made to be sure his name wasn't appearing in the newspapers.

Another firm (it manufactures dog food) wants all news stories involving heroic dogs.

"For a time we had a client who wanted all photos of drum majorettes appearing in skirts," Haupt recalled. "We couldn't figure why. It turned out he was a young lad trying to build his own collection of pinup pictures. His mother stopped the service."

The clipping bureau cooperates with the FBI to see that the requests of clients from behind the Iron Curtain are checked for security clearance.

Scanning at the rate of 20,000

words a minute (the average person doesn't read more than about 250), Haupt can get through the equivalent of a dozen or more long-winded novels in a day.

He looks for key words, names or phrases, underlining them as he goes. The stories are clipped later by other workers.

The biggest occupational dangers for professional readers such as Haupt are daydreaming and getting too interested in a subject.

"You can't let that happen," he said. "But no matter how fast he skip over the pages, some of the information sticks in my mind. You get so you know a little bit about practically everything.

His terrific reading has had no bad effect on his eyes. He still wears the same lenses in his glasses he did 10 years ago.

His hobby?

"I like to read the newspaper going home from work," Haupt said, "but leisurely."

He reads Haupt with something akin to awe. Few can read at even half the pace set by his bee eyes.

As he reads Haupt, who has a

Opportunity for Communists

There is quite a fuss among the Harvard alumni over the choice of Dr. Robert J. Oppenheimer as the deliverer of the 1957 William James lectures.

Dr. Oppenheimer long associated with atomic fission, testifying concerning himself and friends and colleagues against communist affiliations, admitted that he had not told the truth. The Atomic Energy Commission, in a report signed by Lewis L. Strauss, Chairman, and Eugene M. Zuckert and Joseph Campbell, commissioners, stated:

"... We find Dr. Oppenheimer is not entitled to the continued confidence of the government and of this commission because of the proof of fundamental defects in his character."

"In respect to the criterion of 'associations,' we find that his associations with persons known to him to be communists have extended far beyond the tolerable limits of prudence and self-restraint which are to be expected of one holding the high positions that the government has continuously entrusted to him since 1942. These associations have lasted too long to be justified as merely the intermittent and accidental revival of earlier friendships."

So a group of Harvard alumni, in Boston and New York, organized the Harvard "Veritas" committee to arouse other alumni and public opinion generally to oppose Dr. Oppenheimer as a Harvard lecturer. The William James lectures on philosophy are supposed to be identified with ethics and wisdom. But William James has been identified with pragmatism, which philosophers of other schools rarely admit is an ethical view of life.

At any rate, the Harvard "Veritas" committee has accepted

Harvard's slogan, "Veritas," meaning truth, as their motto.

Their point is that there is no truth in Dr. Oppenheimer. Before this committee was organized, an alumnus, Kenneth D. Robertson, '29, entered upon considerable correspondence with Federal Judge Charles E. Wyman, '27, who is chairman of the Board of Harvard overseers.

I've read this correspondence which runs to many pages and it would seem that Judge Wyzanski's correspondence publicized Robertson if the latter made Wyzanski's correspondence public. This Robertson did and Wyzanski, so far as I know, has not sued. The Veritas committee is making this exchange of correspondence available. True, it must be very embarrassing to the learned judge to have his letters read by the hoipolloi because he does not argue too well but pontifically.

Most Americans dislike a big shot taking advantage, particularly of a situation to which the people elevated him. Harry Truman's remarks of his bad blood with Ike show Harry in a better light, because a President who refused to be polite to an ex-President is taking advantage of a man who has no way to fight back.

Besides, by all the rules of politics, Eisenhower owes Truman a debt of gratitude, to repay which a dish of scrambled eggs and bacon, with toast and ham, and good coffee, is not asking too much. Truman, however, does not play golf, his specialty being Mozart.

However, to get back to the Veritas committee, the likelihood is that the Oppenheimer lectures will take place, in English or Sanskrit, and that numerous scholars will attend and applaud.

The mood has changed and even at Columbia University, which is fairly conservative compared to Harvard, the John Dewey Society invited John Gates, the editor of the "Daily Worker," to address them and another student body had Dr. Otto Nathan of New York University who, among other curious activities, is the curator of Albert Einstein's dead brain and I find it difficult to discover what he has done

CLEVELAND (AP)—Research grants amounting to more than $75,000 for improving teaching have been awarded to four Ohio colleges by the Fund for the Advancement of Education.

Under the fund's program, 27 colleges and universities throughout the country will receive $493,230 to support experimental teaching improvement programs.

Ohio schools receiving the grants are Case Institute of Technology, the University of Akron, Oberlin College and Antioch College.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

JAMES J. HILL, builder of the Great Northern railroad, was a stickler for detail. On one inspection, he spotted a brand-new spike lying on the roadbed, and angrily summoned the section foreman. The latter sized up the situation at a glance, and beat Hill to the punch by exclaiming, "How wonderful of you to locate that spike! I've had three men looking for it for a week!"

A neurotic specimen sidled furtively up to a bar and said, "I'm a confirmed hypochondriac full of imaginary ills. Can you suggest a drink that will help a poor man in my condition?" "I've got just the thing for you," said the bartender. "A sharp pain cocktail!"

Old Rankin, bookseller, was breathing his last, and named six bank officials to be his pallbearers. "Those poor fellows," he sighed, "have been carrying me so long they might as well finish the job."

Do You Know This Man? (Maybe he's YOU!)

We're looking for a young man who has that little something extra on the ball.

For one thing, he has an unusually pleasant personality and likes to meet and talk to people.

Also, he's unusually bright and eager-willing to work for what he wants.

Most of all, he's unusually ambitious-wants to get started right now on his big job ... and the big money.

Our present men average over $5000 a year, and some earn as high as $8000. Their ability and their willingness to work set their earning limit.

We figure he's somewhere between 21 and 45 and his present job is selling vacuum cleaners, books, milk, bread, feed or insurance, but selling something.

Army Retires Last of Its 40,000 Heroic Pigeons

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army announced Saturday the honored retirement of the last 15 pigeons heroes of the original flock of 40,000 that carried thousands of messages and saved hundreds of lives in World War II.

Special presentation ceremonies have been planned on dates to be announced later when the war birds are delivered to their new homes in Cleveland and Dayton, Ohio; Baltimore, Md.; Detroit, Mich.; Seattle, Wash.; Montgomery, Ala.; Scottsbluff, Neb.; and Washington, D. C.

Last year the Army announced that its pigeons, for all of their contribution in past wars, could no longer keep up with the speed and accuracy of modern electronic communication. The 1,000 pigeons remaining in the Army's flock, housed at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., were sold to fanciers at a public sale in March. But the Army held back its leading pigeon heroes in order to find homes for them in public zoos.

GI Joe, the famous pigeon who saved the lives of a British brigade during World War II, will go to the Detroit Zoo along with C. O. D.

GI Joe flew 20 miles in as many minutes carrying an order to cancel the scheduled bombing of Colvi Vecchia, Italy, when it was learned that more than 1,000 British soldiers had entered the city ahead of time.

C.O.D. flew 20 combat missions in the Mediterranean theater.

The Baltimore Zoo will receive Yank and Apex. Yank is renowned for carrying a message on the fall of Gafsa in Tunisia and for flying an urgent message to Gen. George Patton, completing his 90-mile mission in 100 minutes. Apex flew more than 20 missions in the India-Burma theater.

Another pair of war heroes, Caesar and Flippie, will find homes in the Oak Park Zoo in Montgomery, Ala. Caesar is officially credited with 44 combat flights in North Africa, one of them a 300-mile journey. Flippie is a combat veteran of 20 missions in Europe.

The Dayton Museum of Natural History will be home for Lady Karen and Special Delivery. Lady Karen flew 31 missions and Special Delivery flew more than 20 missions. Both birds served in Italy.

The Cleveland Zoological Gardens will receive Pro Patria and Crossed Flags, with 35 and 20 combat flights respectively in the European theater.

The Woodland Park Zoological Garden in Seattle will be the new home for Geronimo and Eureka. Both of these pigeons flew in Eu-

Expert Sees Record-Breaking Year For Church Fund-Raising in World

CHICAGO (UPI)—"There is every indication that this will be a record-breaking year for church fund raising—not only in the United States but throughout the world."

This is the opinion of a man who has helped churches raise more than half a billion dollars since World War II. He is Col. Lewis G. Wells, 52, chairman of the board of Wells Organization, Inc.

In the past decade, Wells' firm has headed fund caravans for 6,000 churches.

"We reached canvassed objectives in 98 per cent of the projects," he said.

"We not only help the church obtain its funds, we are part of the upsurge in the present wave of church building. There is an increasing pressure for churches in new communities. We are a church fund-raising counsel. The churches wanted to do it and didn't know how to do it. We showed them how."

Wells says a new religious revival under way in New Zealand and Australia is due in part to his work.

"We are a cause of an increased interest in church attendance there. Church attendance usually improves after we run a campaign."

Wells' firm employs 624 people, with 324 of them in America. There are 24 offices in the United States and 12 in Canada. Three are in New Zealand, six in Australia, three in South Africa and one in London.

When the Wells organization undertakes a fund-raising project, it conducts a four to eight-week canvass for a church to determine the amount that is likely to be raised. It trains parishioners to call on fellow members of the church in a face to face appeal for funds.

"As a result you get a dynamic attention that hasn't been there before with a canvass and solicitation among themselves," he said.

Wells handles the firm's business on a public relations basis.

Bowling Ball Drops into Home

AKRON (UPI)—Shortly before dawn, the Henry J. Carson family was awakened by a shattering noise.

Investigation showed a 16 pound bowling ball had appeared in their living room.

In addition there were large new holes in the roof.

Not far from the Carson residence is the North Hill Viaduct, elevated about 150 feet.

The house is not directly under the viaduct. Hence it seems likely the ball was propelled outward by some force.

And at that time of morning the bowling alleys have been closed for hours. Some irate bowler probably had a slow fuse.

Wells was an administrator in the U. S. Army Air Corps in the Pentagon during World War II while on Gen. Hap Arnold's staff.

His fund-raising organization dates back to 1910. His father, the founder, Herbert Wells, now 82, remains honorary chairman of the board of directors.

During World War I, the elder Wells directed the first nationwide Red Cross appeal for 100 million dollars.

Col. Wells is a Presbyterian.

His father is an elder in the Presbyterian Church in Steubenville, Ohio.

It organizes committees and trains leaders. Wells "says a flat fee is charged for the service—the size of the church determines the amount of the fee."

Among the 1,000 churches handled last year the average Wells fee was $3,000. Wells figures his fees have averaged 3.6 per cent of the total funds raised. He estimates that campaigns now in progress by 200 churches will result in more than 20 million dollars.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army announced Saturday the honored retirement of the last 15 pigeon heroes of the original flock of 40,000 that carried thousands of messages and saved hundreds of lives in World War II.

Special presentation ceremonies have been planned on dates to be announced later when the war birds are delivered to their new homes in Cleveland and Dayton, Ohio; Baltimore, Md.; Detroit, Mich.; Seattle, Wash.; Montgomery, Ala.; Scottsbluff, Neb.; and Washington, D. C.

Last year the Army announced that its pigeons, for all of their contribution in past wars, could no longer keep up with the speed and accuracy of modern electronic communication. The 1,000 pigeons remaining in the Army's flock, housed at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., were sold to fanciers at a public sale in March. But the Army held back its leading pigeon heroes in order to find homes for them in public zoos.

GI Joe, the famous pigeon who saved the lives of a British brigade during World War II, will go to the Detroit Zoo along with C. O. D.

GI Joe flew 20 miles in as many minutes carrying an order to cancel the scheduled bombing of Colvi Vecchia, Italy, when it was learned that more than 1,000 British soldiers had entered the city ahead of time.

C. O. D. flew 20 combat missions in the Mediterranean theater.

The Baltimore Zoo will receive Yank and Apex. Yank is renowned for carrying a message on the fall of Gafsa in Tunisia and for flying an urgent message to Gen. George Patton, completely his 90-mile mission in 100 minutes. Apex flew more than 20 missions in the India-Burma theater.

Another pair of war heroes, Caesar and Flipper, will find homes in the Oak Park Zoo in Montgomery, Ala. Caesar is officially credited with 44 combat flights in North Africa, one of them a 300-mile journey. Flipper is a combat veteran of 20 missions in Europe.

The Dayton Museum of Natural History will be home for Lady Karen and Special Delivery. Lady Karen flew 31 missions and Special Delivery flew more than 20 missions. Both birds served in Italy.

The Cleveland Zoological Gardens will receive Pro Patria and Crossed Flags, with 35 and 20 combat flights respectively in the European theater.

The Woodland Park Zoological Garden in Seattle will be the new home for Geronimo and Eureka. Both of these pigeons flew in Eu-

Expert Sees Record-Breaking Year For Church Fund-Raising in World

CHICAGO (AP) — "There is every indication that this will be a record-breaking year for church fund raising — not only in the United States but throughout the world."

This is the opinion of a man who has helped churches raise more than half a billion dollars since World War II. He is Col. Lewis G. Wells, 52, chairman of the board of Wells Organization, Inc.

In the past decade, Wells' firm has headed fund caravans for 6,000 churches.

"We reached canvassed objectives in 98 per cent of the projects," he said.

"We not only help the church obtain its funds, we are part of the upsurge in the present wave of church building. There is an increasing pressure for churches in new communities. We are a church fund-raising counsel. The churches wanted to do it and didn't know how to do it. We showed them how."

Wells says a new religious revival under way in New Zealand and Australia is due in part to his work.

"We are a cause of an increased interest in church attendance there. Church attendance usually improves after we run a campaign."

Wells' firm employs 624 people, with 324 of them in America. There are 24 offices in the United States and 12 in Canada. Three are in New Zealand, six in Australia, three in South Africa and one in London.

undertakes a fund-raising project, it conducts a four to eight-week canvass for a church to determine the amount that is likely to be raised. It trains parishioners to call on fellow members of the church in a face to face appeal for funds.

"As a result you get a dynamic attention that hasn't been there before with a canvass and solicitation among themselves," he said.

Wells handles the firm's business on a public relations basis.

and at that time of morning the bowling alleys have been closed for hours. Some irate bowler probably had a slow fuse.

The house is not directly under the viaduct. Hence it seems likely the ball was propelled outward by some force.

During World War I, the elder Wells directed the first nationwide Red Cross appeal for 100 million dollars.

Col. Wells is a Presbyterian.

His father is an elder in the Presbyterian Church in Steubenville, Ohio.

"If everybody gave more than 5 per cent of their income to the church there wouldn't be any more wars" says Wells. "People would be unselfish, generous and faith would be there instead of fear."

"If I'm giving generously to my church, I can withstand misfortune. It's true, as Jesus said, that 'where thy treasure is; there will thy heart be also'."

Yankees Tagged To Win Flag This Season

Man-Sized Scare May Come from New Detroit Tiger '9'

By JOE REICHLER
AP Baseball Expert

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees, who spread-eagled the field by nine games last year, should win the American League pennant again in 1957, but not without a man-sized scare from the Detroit Tigers, easily most improved club in the junior circuit.

The race shapes up as a two-team struggle between the player-rich Yankees and the youthful Tigers, with Chicago and Cleveland battling for third and Boston's Red Sox leading the second division.

The Yankees are going into the race with the most important asset: the most good ball players. They also are the most versatile team, extremely confident after winning seven pennants in eight years.

The Yankees are a solid team with the possible exception of third base and left field, but habitually they come up with like Bobby Richardson and Tony Kubek could cement these loose ties.

This year they appear to have come up with tremendous pitching, with Johnny Kucks and Tom Sturdivant ready to challenge Whitey Ford for staff supremacy. Behind this trio there are Don Larsen, Bob Turley, Art Ditmar, Bobby Shantz, Tommy Byrne, Bob Grim and rookies Ralph Terry and Walt Cicotte. They would rank as a starting staff on other teams.

All that pitching and Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra too. Not to mention Hank Bauer, Gil McDougald, Billy Martin, Bill Skowron, et al.

How they'll finish in the American League this year:

1. New York 5. Boston

2. Detroit 6. Baltimore

3. Chicago 7. Washington

4. Cleveland 8. Kansas City

The Tigers rate the No. 2 spot partially because of their strong finish in 1956. They were the best team in the league after midseason, posting a 48-30 record as compared with 45-31 for the Yankees.

Detroit has more than mere won-lost statistics to back up its claim. There are three established pitchers in Frank Lary, Billy Hoeft and Paul Foytack, and three youngsters who have looked impressive this spring, Duke Maas, Jim Bunning and Don Lee.

Four regulars, Harvey Kuenn, Charlie Maxwell, Al Kaline and Ray Boone, hit over .300 last year and Maxwell, Kaline and Boone pack the long-ball punch. They have added Eddie Robinson and Jim Finigan for bench strength.

The White Sox, because of their better speed, a more set lineup and a deeper bench, should edge them for third place.

The Red Sox story is the same—they still have Ted Williams and still looking for a shortstop.

While Boston's biggest problem is the infield, the pitching, or lack of it, must rank next. Tom Bremer and Frank Sullivan are the only dependable starters.

The Baltimore Orioles must be respected for their potential pitching and defense, but for little else.

Washington appears a bit better off than last year. The addition of Ted Abernathy strengthens their mound staff.

Asked to name Kansas City's strongest point, Manager Lou Boudreau replied frankly: "Our fans." The team lacks speed, defense and pitching.

He said after Sunday workout: "We certainly have the quantity (referring to the number) and while the quality looks good, only time will tell how good."

Hildreth announced the practice schedule: Wednesdays at 6 p.m., and every Saturday and Sunday afternoon until the season opens May 5.

While there are some right sharp aspirants for both infield and outfield, Hildreth said catchers are needed and added that "we would like to have some more pitchers."

He made it plain, too, that the door is still open to candidates for any position on the team.

INFILDEERS out for the first two workouts are:

Kenny Robinett, a first baseman, who has had considerable experience in pro ball on St. Louis farm clubs. A graduate of Washington C. H. High School, he is now married and working at the Colonial Stair Co. in Jeffersonville;

Herb Russell, a second baseman and basketball coach of Washington C. H. High School;

Dale Coppock, a shortstop, who made a name for himself as an all-round athlete at Jeffersonville High School. He is only recently out of the service, where he played a lot of baseball;

Lindy Sharrett of Jeffersonville, who has been playing third base for Jeffersonville teams in the SWO League for several years;

Jack Rettig of Washington C. H., a shortstop, who is now a student at Ohio State University. He played

Doug Ford Is Aggressive, Cops Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Doug Ford is the new Masters Champion and currently golf's most successful money collector.

"I didn't think I was aggressive enough, so I changed my grip this year with the idea of getting closer to the pin," the 34-year-old touring pro from Mahopac, N. Y., said today, flinging the $8,750 first prize check of the Masters.

The windfall raised Ford's golf winnings of the year to $25,184, well ahead of his competitors.

Ford's daredevil gambling instinct and his new-found aggressiveness Sunday carried him to the greatest finishing round in the Masters history (a 6-under-par 66) which left favorites gaping.

Doug's total of 283 for four rounds over Augusta National's exacting course was three shots better than that of Sam Snead, the front runner for two days.

Jimmy Demaret followed at 287 and Harvie Ward Jr., the brilliant amateur champion, was another stroke back at 288.

Demaret shot a final 70, Snead a 72 and Ward a 73. Australia's Peter Thomson took a 71 for 289 and lame-armed Ed Furgol a 74 for 290. Dow Finsterwald and Arnie Palmer had 291.

Dupas To Meet Vince Martinez

NEW ORLEANS — Ralph Dupas, sixth-ranked lightweight contender, takes on No. 6 welterweight Vince Martinez here tonight in a bout that has fight fans guessing.

Dupas, a 21-year-old New Orleans veteran of 77 fights, is a fancy-moving boxer with speed to spare, while Martinez, 27-year-old Paterson, N. J., counterpuncher, has more steam in his blows.

The big question mark is how well Dupas weathered accusations last week that he was a Negro and therefore barred by state law from meeting a white fighter.

The Louisiana State Athletic Commission held, in effect, that there was no substance to the claims.

Invitation by Jim Rhodes Cited in Pan-Am Turndown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two State Department officials say Ohio Auditor James Rhodes invited Latin American countries to hold the 1959 Pan American games in Cleveland without the State Department knowing it.

The United States government itself had nothing to do with extending the invitations, they claim.

The statements came out in testimony presented before a House Appropriations subcommittee by Roy R. Rubottom Jr., acting Assistant Secretary for Inter-American Affairs, and Isaac W. Carpenter Jr., Assistant Secretary controller. The testimony was made public Sunday.

The officials said the State Department learned about the invitations only after Rhodes had personally extended them when he was in Mexico City for the 1955 games.

It was for that reason, they said, that the State Department refused to support a 5 million dollar appropriation for the games. They said the department never backed the idea of spending federal money for the contests.

At the subcommittee hearing, Chairman Rooney (D-N.Y.) remarked to Rubottom:

"So we have these private citizens (Rhodes and municipal representatives) attending the games in Mexico City and inviting them to come to Cleveland in 1959. Is that correct?"

"Yes," Rubottom replied.

Rubottom urged the subcommittee to approve the appropriation.

"Unless we get favorable consideration from this committee, it will be a black eye upon the United States and not the city of Cleveland," he said.

Rooney asked Rhodes just one question:

"Are you gentleman who extended the invitation to these people in Mexico City?"

"Yes, sir," replied Rhodes.

"Thank you, Mr. Rhodes."

Congress, unwilling to spend federal money to help build a stadium and swimming pool in Cleveland, joined the State Department in opposing the appropriation. Guatemala offered to stage the contests instead, but withdrew the offer later.

Don Hoak, free-hitting candidate for a job at third base, launched the four-base barrage with the bases empty. Ed Bailey got two homers and Gus Bell and Frank Robinson one each.

Aided by a 60-pin handicap, Roberts had a 781 total to grab the lead from Ott Markulis of Akron, who held the top spot after the first two weekends of action.

Salvatore De Vito of Shelby and William Boyd Jr. of Warren tied for second place in the singles with 722. Markulis' 716 left him in third place.

Sportsmen To Meet Thursday To Make Recommendations

Fayette County's sportsmen of field and stream will have an opportunity to express their views on hunting and fishing regulations Thursday night at a meeting at the Fish and Game Assn. lodge near Buena Vista.

What's more, their views will be carried right on up to the top, to the wild state's Wildlife Commission which makes the rules for the gun and rod wielders.

This meeting, to start at 8 o'clock will be open to the public. It will be an open discussion of the fish and game regulations and will wind up with a summary in the form of recommendations.

These recommendations will be taken to a district meeting of sportsmen to be held in Chillicothe later, at a date yet to be announced.

From a summary of all the district recommendations, the state meeting will make recommendations to the Wildlife Commission —and the commission will take these as its guide for changing, or continuing, the rules governing hunting and fishing in Ohio.

Arnold Grillot, public relations chairman of the Fish and Game Assn. here, outlined the procedures when he announced the Thursday meeting.

GLENN HAMILTON, he said, will be the chairman of the meeting. Leading the discussion will be at least two game protectors, Dave Krupla, the county officer, and Charles Cooper, the district officer.

Grillot put a post script on his announcement: He expressed the hope that members would turn in the cards of new members (or renewals of old members) Thursday night.

He said he knows a number of sportsmen have joined the association in the sign-up campaign conducted since the first of the year, but that their cards have not yet been given to the association secretary.

Ruth Troy Hamburger of Dayton, winner of the 1939 all-events, will roll the first ball Thursday to open the big pin classic, following a downtown parade. Dayton teams will make up the first shift, with the first of the visitors taking the lanes Friday.

The annual WIBC convention will be held May 6-7.

Lafayette placed the cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument on June 17, 1825, when he returned to the U. S. to meet old friends.

The five-woman race will be bowled in three divisions, giving bowlers of all averages an equal chance at the prize money. The top division, for teams averaging 750 or over, has 788 entrants. The 651 to 749 average group has 1,439 teams participating, and 881 will

Ruth Troy Hamburger of Dayton, winner of the 1939 all-events, will roll the first ball Thursday to open the big pin classic, following a downtown parade. Dayton teams will make up the first shift, with the first of the visitors taking the lanes Friday.

The annual WIBC convention will be held May 6-7.

Lafayette placed the cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument on June 17, 1825, when he returned to the U. S. to meet old friends.

Cities with the largest representation are Detroit with 126 teams, Cincinnati 98, Toledo 78, Columbus 60 and Chicago 56. The host city leads the way with 788 teams entered, and Ohio has almost half the entry with 1,525 teams.

The five-woman race will be bowled in three divisions, giving bowlers of all averages an equal chance at the prize money. The top division, for teams averaging 750 or over, has 788 entrants. The 651 to 749 average group has 1,439 teams participating, and 881 will enter the entry with 1,525 teams.

Ike's Kid Brother Cautions on Aid

NEW YORK (P)—Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's youngest brother, says private universities would lose their independence if they accepted federal help for their general operation.

Dr. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, said independence from government control has been a great factor in enabling private colleges to pioneer. "Without freedom, there is no education—it's merely indoctrination," he said.

The same philosophy still goes at R. Brandenburg Motor Sales. Business is good.

Saturday we paid our employees in silver $5, over seventeen hundred ($1700) of them. If you happen to get a silver dollar in change or in payment for a purchase this week I hope it came from Brandenburg's. We make our money at home and we believe in spending it at home.

Our competitors are nice guys all of them. In the old days they were (I won't say it). We like to do business in a fine city and county and are starting our next twenty-five years with just as much enthusiasm as ever. Altogether let's go! and business will continue to be good.

Grand Jurors Meet Monday; Six Cases Up

Forelady Chosen To Preside over Deliberations

The Fayette County April term grand jury convened at 9 a.m. Monday, and for the first time in his four years on the Common Pleas Court bench Judge John P. Case named a forelady rather than a foreman.

She is Mrs. Willis Coffman, who was assigned by the court before the jury retired at 9:30 a.m. to consider six cases bound over from Municipal Court and such other matters as Prosecutor Rollo W. Merchant may present.

The jury's work probably will be completed Monday afternoon.

DEFENDANTS in the six cases are Albert Beatty, charged with shooting with intent to wound; James Beatty Jr., accused of assault with intent to rob; Charles Wheeler, Merle Sanders and Roger Mossbarger, charged with breaking and entering, and William Rose, accused of auto theft.

Wheeler is a prisoner at the Ohio Reformatory, Mansfield, where he was committed for parole violation.

TWELVE WITNESSES have been called to appear before the grand jury which is composed of Mrs. Coffman, Bertha M. Wright, Jean Rowe, Grace Goodwin, Ralph Penn, Charles A. Shaper, Helen Denen, Virgil D. Dwyer, Ervin Ritter, Hazel Bonner, Wilbur Neff, Alvin Lewis, Harry Ankrom, Alonso Bass and Harry Robinson.

The Rev. W. Neil Hand, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation.

Two WHS Students Attend Conference

Bob Hunter and John Rhoad came back from the weekend conference of the Ohio Assn. of Student Councils with some ideas they will lay before the Washington C. H. High School Student Council at its next meeting.

Hunter, a senior and president of the WHS council, and Rhoad, junior and president-elect, were among the nearly 500 representatives from high schools all over Ohio at the conference, which was held Friday and Saturday at Tala-wada High School and Miami University in Oxford. They were accompanied by Edwin Nestor, a member of the WHS faculty and advisor of the student council.

The theme of the conference was: "Tomorrow Is Today." During the two-day session, 42 discussion groups considered 22 different topics pertaining to student leadership for better council activity.

Four Treated For Accidents

Some days it just doesn't pay to get out of bed. You might get bitten by a dog, for instance. Or you might get burned. You could get hurt while you were playing.

All of these things happened to Washington C. H. and Fayette County residents over the weekend, reports from the emergency room at Memorial Hospital show.

Barbara Ellen Looker, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Looker, 134 Grand Ave., was burned on her left shoulder after scalding water spilled on her from a stove.

Eddie Juillerat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Juillerat, 728 W. Elm St., hurt his nose while playing baseball.

Dale Merritt, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Merritt, 407 Rose Ave., was bitten by a dog.

And Marcus Molley, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Molley, near Washington C. H., fell while he was at work and cut the ring finger and little finger of his right hand.

All were treated and released.

Girl Hurt as Car Hits Tree after Accelerator Jams

Miss Dollie Temple, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Temple, near Bloomingburg, was report ed "doing well" at her home today after an auto driven by James Collins, 17, Bloomingburg, who told Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Mickle he was driving out of an alley between Bowers and Cross Sts. on West St. when the accelerator jammed, driving the car across the street and into a tree.

Miss Temple apparently was thrown forward with the impact of the crash, bruising her forehead on the windshield. She was treated in the emergency room of Memorial Hospital.

The front end of the car was badly damaged. Collins was not held.

Youth Wounds Self With 'Unloaded' Gun

Harold Randolph, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph of 1904 S. Fayette St. was seriously injured Sunday afternoon when a .22 rifle he was checking went off and fired a bullet into his knee.

Reported in "good" condition at Memorial Hospital Monday morning, young Randolph's kneecap had to be removed after the mishap.

Alone at his home when the accident occurred, Randolph called police himself, telling them he was checking the weapon when it was discharged, sending a hollow-point slug into the leg.

He didn't know the gun was loaded, he told police.

Alley Intersection Scene of Collision

No one was injured in a two-car collision at the alley intersection behind the Cherry Hotel about 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

The mishap occurred when a car driven by John Pollock, 18, of near Washington C. H., collided with an auto driven by Larry Seymour, 16, of 513 Peddicord Ave.

Pollock reported he was going south in one alley, while Seymour said he was going west in the other. Both drivers said they stopped at the intersection, tooted their horns, and went on. The left front fender of Seymour's car was smashed.

Damage to Pollock's auto was negligible, police said.

Last Meeting Tuesday For Sunnyside PTA

Final meeting of the year for the Sunnyside Parent-Teacher Assn. will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school.

The meeting will open with a potluck supper and the business session will follow thereafter. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

Cases dismissed:

Amie Riley vs. Forrest Riley; Ruth Lucille Peters vs. Earl Lee Peters; Mary L. Noon vs. Wallace R. Noon; Barbara Haines vs. Billy Haines; Robert E. Banks vs. Doris Banks; Everett Kenneth Bennett vs. Lois Maxine Bennett, a minor; Mona Lu May vs. Delmar Eugene May; Wayne Hoop vs. Maxine Hoop; Nancy Ann Schneider vs. Arthur Schreider.

Grand Jurors Meet Monday; Six Cases Up

Forelady Chosen To Preside over Deliberations

The Fayette County April term grand jury convened at 9 a. m. Monday, and for the first time in his four years on the Common Pleas Court bench Judge John P. Case named a forelady rather than a foreman.

She is Mrs. Willis Coffman, who was assigned by the court before the jury retired at 9:30 a. m. to consider six cases bound over from Municipal Court and such other matters as Prosecutor Rollo W. Merchant may present.

The jury's work probably will be completed Monday afternoon.

DEFENDANTS in the six cases are Albert Beatty, charged with shooting with intent to wound; James Beatty Jr., accused of assault with intent to rob; Charles Wheeler, Merle Sanders and Roger Mossbarger, charged with breaking and entering, and William Rose, accused of auto theft.

Wheeler is a prisoner at the Ohio Reformatory, Mansfield, where he was committed for parole violation.

TWELVE WITNESSES have been called to appear before the grand jury which is composed of Mrs. Coffman, Bertha M. Wright, Jean Rose, Grace Goodwin, Ralph Penn, Charles A. Shaper, Helen Denen, Virgil D. Dwyer, Ervin Ritter, Hazel Bonner, Wilbur Neff, Alvin Lewis, Harry Ankrom, Alonzo Bass and Harry Robinson.

The Rev. W. Neil Hand, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation.

Two WHS Students Attend Conference

Bob Hunter and John Rhoad came back from the weekend conference of the Ohio Assn. of Student Councils with some ideas they will lay before the Washington C. H. High School Student Council at its next meeting.

Hunter, a senior and president of the WHS council, and Rhoad, a junior and president-elect, were among the nearly 500 representatives from high schools all over Ohio at the conference, which was held Friday and Saturday at Tala-wada High School and Miami University in Oxford. They were accompanied by Edwin Nestor, a member of the WHS faculty and advisor of the student council.

The theme of the conference was: "Tomorrow Is Today." During the two-day session, 42 discussion groups considered 22 different topics pertaining to student leadership for better council activity.

Four Treated For Accidents Called Success

$95 Netted at Sale Is For Scholarship

Some days it just doesn't pay to get out of bed. You might get bitten by a dog, for instance. Or you might get burned. You could get hurt while you were playing.

All of these things happened to Washington C. H. and Fayette County residents over the weekend, reports from the emergency room at Memorial Hospital show.

Barbara Ellen Looker, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Looker, 134 Grand Ave., was burned on her left shoulder after scalding water spilled on her from a stove.

Eddie Juillerat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Juillerat, 728 W. Elm St., hurt his nose while playing chess.

Dale Merritt, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Merritt, 407 Rose Ave., was bitten by a dog.

And Marus Mollay, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mollay, of near Washington C. H., fell while he was at work and cut the ring finger and little finger of his right hand.

All were treated and released.

Girl Hurt as Car Hits Tree after Accelerator Jams

Miss Dollie Temple, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Temple, of near Bloomingburg, was report ed "doing well" at her home today following an auto accident in Bloomingburg Sunday morning.

Miss Temple was a passenger in an auto driven by James Collins, 17, Bloomingburg, who told Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Mickle he was driving out of an alley between Bowers and Cross Sts. on West when in the accelerator jammed, driving the car across the street and into a tree.

Miss Temple apparently was thrown forward with the impact of the crash, bruising her forehead on the windshield. She was treated in the emergency room of Memorial Hospital.

The front end of the car was badly damaged. Collins was not held.

Mrs. Child said the Delta Kappa Gamma society was "very appreciative" of the books given to it for the "fair" and added that since we plan to have another, we will come and get any people want to donate any time."

Nine Civil Actions Dismissed by Court

Nine pending civil actions were dismissed for want of prosecution in Common Pleas Court Monday morning.

Reported in "good" condition at Memorial Hospital Monday morning, young Randolph's kneecap had to be removed after the mishap.

Alone at his home when the accident occurred, Randolph called police himself, telling them he was checking the weapon when it was discharged, sending a hollow-point .22 slug into the leg.

He didn't know the gun was loaded, he told police.

Alley Intersection Scene of Collision

No one was injured in a two-car collision at the alley intersection behind the Cherry Hotel about 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

The mishap occurred when a car driven by John Pollock, 18, of near Washington C. H., collided with an auto driven by Larry Seymour, 16, of 513 Peddicord Ave.

Pollock reported he was going south in one alley, while Seymour said he was going west in the other. Both drivers said they stopped at the intersection, tooted their horns, and went on. The left front Fender of Seymour's car was smashed.

Damage to Pollock's auto was negligible, police said.

DKG Book Fair

Called Success

$95 Netted at Sale Is For Scholarship

The "book fair," held Saturday by the Delta Kappa Gamma society in the Washington Hotel Banquet room, was considered such a success from so many angles that more probably will be held in the future, Mrs. Ralph Child, the public relations chairman, said Monday.

All of these things happened to Washington C. H. and Fayette County residents over the weekend, reports from the emergency room at Memorial Hospital show.

Barbara Ellen Looker, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Looker, 134 Grand Ave., was burned on her left shoulder after scalding water spilled on her from a stove.

More Volunteers Needed

Farm Accident Survey Set for Fayette County

Plans for a team of 35 volunteer interviewers to swing into action on Fayette County's farm accident survey today are just about complete.

Between now and April 15 the interviewers will check one out of every three farm families in the county as part of a study to develop long-range, state-wide safety educational program.

County farm organization representatives and leaders drafted plans for the survey at a meeting Friday at the Farm Bureau auditorium. R. H. Baker, Agricultural economist, and W. E. Stuckey, extension safety specialist, Ohio State University, met with the group to explain the program on the state level.

In their forthcoming "down-the-road canvass, the interviewers will ask farmers for accident information covering the first three months of this year. The information will include the ages of any family members injured, where and how the accident happened, factors involved, seriousness of injuries, time lost from work, amount of hospital and doctor bills and other such data.

W. W. Montgomery, county agricultural agent, urged all farmers to cooperate in the survey.

"All information will be kept confidential," he said. "We hope to gain from this survey facts on non-farm accidents which will point up problems and serve as a basis for a safety program geared to meet the needs of rural people." The survey will be repeated in July and October of this year and in January of next year.

This brings the number of pending cases to 131.

None of the attorneys involved were present in the courtroom when Judge John P. Case ordered the actions dropped in accordance with a posted announcement.

Cases dismissed were:

Amie Riley vs. Forrest Riley; Ruth Lavelle Peters vs. Earl Lee Peters; Mary L. Noont vs. Wallace N. Noon; Barbara Haines vs. Billy Haines; Robert E. Banks vs. Doris Banks; Everett Kenneth Bennett vs. Lois Maxine Bennett, a minor; Mona Lu May vs. Delmar Eugene May; Wayne Hoop vs. Maxine Hoop; Nancy Ann Schneider vs. Arthur Schneider.

Last Meeting Tuesday For Sunnyside PTA

Final meeting of the year for the Sunnyside Parent-Teacher Assn. will be held at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the school.

The meeting will open with a potluck supper and the business session will follow thereafter. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

Damage to Pollock's auto was negligible, police said.

Fayette County groups cooperating in the project are the Grange, Farm Bureau, Home Demonstration Clubs, Extension Advisory Committee and 4-H clubs. Sponsoring the study on the state level are the state extension safety specialist, the departments of Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Engineering, Ohio State University and the Ohio Farm and Home Safety Committee.

Cancer Crusade Reports Not in

Two Drivers Fined, Two Forfeit Bonds

A man was found not guilty of assault, two people were fined for traffic offenses and two other traffic offenders forfeited bond in a quiet Monday morning in Municipal Court. One man was fined by Judge Max G. Dice for intoxication, said Monday morning.

Despite the cold wind Saturday, the tag day netted $229. This was about $10 less than last year's tag day produced but Mrs. Reed interpreted it as an indication of public support of the war against cancer.

She pointed out that the 4-H club members, who offered the little red "swords" of hope for a contribution, not only had to stand on the streets in the cold, but also that they found people bundled against the wind and reluctant to stop.

THE WEATHERMAN pulled a switch for Cancer Sunday; the day was more springlike and people by the scores took to their cars. As a consequence, door-to-door crusaders received no response to their knocking at many homes.

Anticipating a situation of this kind, the unit directors delayed the reports until Friday. This, it was explained, will give the crusaders an opportunity to make return calls to those homes where no one was at home Sunday.

On the brighter side, Mrs. Reed said, "there has been a very good response to the industry and professional campaigns." These were conducted by mail and were not subject to the whims of weather. Figures, however, are not complete yet, she said.

Mrs. Donald Schwaeigert, chairman of the Washington C. H. canvass, and Mrs. James Perrill and Mrs. Robert H. Willis, co-chairmen of the canvass in the rural area and villages of the county, will not receive reports from all the crusaders until the latter part of the week, Mrs. Reed said.

The final report meeting will not be held until April 22.

The goal of the Fayette County unit this year is $5,000.

Would your insurance buy Your Home?

Do you know what it would cost you to replace your home if it burned? Insurance that was adequate a few years ago is out of date now. We suggest you take another look at your insurance before you find yourself burned out and with insurance to cover only a fraction of the loss. Better do it today.
